

RAJIV GANDHI NATIONAL QUALITY AWARD 2009

Rajiv Gandhi National Quality Award was instituted by the Bureau of Indian Standards in 1991, with a view to encouraging Indian manufacturing and service organizations to strive for excellence and giving special recognition to those who are considered to be the leaders of quality movement in India. This award is intended to generate interest and involvement of Indian Industry in quality programmes, drive our products and services to higher levels of quality and equip our Industry to meet the challenges of domestic and International markets.

The award has been named after our Late Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, recognizing the new thrust he had given to the quality movement in India so that India could move into 21st Century with pride.

Rajiv Gandhi National Quality Award would help Indian Industry to improve quality by:

- a) Encouraging Indian Industry to make significant improvements in quality for maximizing consumer satisfaction and for successfully facing competition in the global market as well;
- b) Recognizing the achievements of those organizations which have improved the quality of their products and services and thereby set an example for others;
- c) Establishing guidelines and criteria that can be used by industry in evaluating their own quality improvement efforts; and
- d) Providing specific guidance to other organizations that wish to learn how to achieve excellence in quality, by making available detailed information on the 'Quality Management Approach' adopted by award winning organizations to change their culture and achieve eminence.

The award has been designed in line with similar awards in other developed countries, like Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award in USA, Deming Prize in Japan and European Quality Award.

FREQUENCY

Rajiv Gandhi National Quality Award is an annual feature on the basis of financial year. The 2009 award will be considered for results achieved by the organization from 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009.

BENEFITS TO THE APPLICANT ORGANIZATIONS

- ★ It will enable the organization to assess its own level of commitment to quality. It will also indicate the extent to which this commitment is being deployed through every level of the organization and in all areas of activities.
- ★ Further, after the process of self assessment is completed, the organization will be in a position to analyze its strengths and weaknesses.

BENEFITS TO THE AWARD WINNERS

- ★ Award winning organization(s) will be reckoned as champions of quality movement in India.

- ★ Award winners can publicize their achievements on their printed and publicity material. However, if a unit of an organization is selected for the award, it will be permitted to publicize its achievements on the printed and publicity material of that unit only, and not that of entire corporate body.
- ★ Awards will be presented in a glittering ceremony in presence of top ranking personalities from government, professional bodies, industry, and consumer associations.
- ★ Award winners may have leverage in business on being recognized as the best.
- ★ Financial incentives
 - Organizations winning the BEST OF ALL Award would be given cash award of Rs. 500 000.
 - Organizations winning the other awards would be given cash award of Rs. 100 000.
